FREE ACTIVITY

As part of the National Caregiver Week, this event aims to raise awareness on caregiving issues and the implications for practice in health and social service organizations and the community sector. This will be a day of learning, exchanges, and networking where best practices, models, and intervention tools will be identified.

It is aimed for practitioners, managers, community organizations, and the research community whose work touches older adults experiencing loss of autonomy and their caregivers.

This continuing education activity is accredited by the OTSTCFQ (7 hrs)

Register now! Limited seating available. Registration until October 26th 2016
